Watching Ottawa
The Magic Slipper
Railroad Common Sense
High Flying

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

AMERICANS will follow closely the proceedings at Ottawa. King George's "thoughts and prayers are with the delegates of the governments." These governments—England, Scotland, Ireland and the dominions—plan to buy from each other, while selling as much as possible to outsiders.

The conference thanks the king for his gracious message, and present their respectful duty, with "thanksgiving for your majesty's continued health," hoping "your majesty and her majesty the queen may long be spared," etc.

Sean T. O'Kelly, representing Ireland, made a good speech. If he did not like the message sent to the king and queen, he said nothing about it. That message showed tact, with Ireland in mind, avoiding any reference to "loyal subjects" and saying nothing about "allegiance."

IN THE NEWS nothing is more interesting than the five thousand women in Morocco bowing down before a small silver slipper, supposed to possess miraculous power to help childless women.

First cattle were sacrificed to pacify a demigod supposed to keep the children from coming. Then the women bowed before the silver slipper, a thousand Moorish men looking on.

Not long ago, in a Christian church in Spain, you might have seen childless women on their hands and knees, licking the dust of the floor from the entrance to the altar, praying for a child. They at least addressed their supplications to the ruler of the universe, not a magic slipper. If you offered the Moroccan women a good obstetrician, instead of a slipper, you would be called a shameless unbeliever.

THE INTERSTATE Commerce commission approval of a merger of 200 eastern railway lines in a four-system railroad plan is a step in the direction of common sense. There ought to be only one railroad system, run by our government, as the postoffice is run, with the ablest railroad men well paid to do the running, and the present private owners justly compensated.

Suppose the postoffice in the East had 500 sets of managers, 300 sets of overhead, 300 varieties of wasteful competition. How much do you think it would cost to send a letter from Florida to Alaska?

Our "best minds" say our government is not sufficiently able or honest to manage a great railroad system. But they may be wrong.

RAILROADS and great railroad men like Harriman, Hill, the original Vanderbilt and others, have been the great "pioneers," builders of this nation.

Railroads are as important to the country as elevators to a skyscraper and should have public support and fair treatment, whether private ownership persists or private owners, discouraged by their problems, decide to "let Uncle Sam do it," and take a fair price for their property.

THE WAY TO RULE the air, earth's new ocean, is to have airships. France and Britain know it. The British have built the biggest land and water fighting airship in existence. The French are testing their "stratosphere plane," planned to fly from New York to Paris in 30 hours. The plane will travel 11 miles up, where the "thin" atmosphere offers little resistance. Its engine, thanks to superchargers, will have vastly increased power at 20,000 feet up, and in the stratosphere, 60,000 feet above the earth, will develop 20,000 revolutions a minute. The pilot will work

MYSTERY IN DEATHS OF 2 GIRLS SOLVED

Male Escorts Tell Police They Drowned; No Poison Found in Organs.

By The Associated Press

ROCHESTER, Minn., July 23—No poison was found in the vital organs of the two girls found dead under mysterious circumstances near here this week, examining physicians said today.

Authorities made public statements taken from two married men who admitted escorting the two single girls to the Zumbro river where their bodies were found. They believed the statements solved the mystery.

The men, both of Plainview, near here, said the party drank liquor, drove to the river bank, disrobed and waded into the water.

The men, according to the statement had gone quite far out when they heard a scream. Looking back they saw in the moonlight that both girls were struggling in the water and that one girl had her arm around the other. Before they could reach the floundering pair, the statements continued, the girls disappeared.

One man dived several times without avail and then, according to the statements, they drove away without even dressing.

The statement of the men, Reuben Kruger, 25, oil station employe, and Jesse Salley, 30, garage mechanic and the subsequent findings of the chemists appeared to officers to have solved a mystery that prevailed since the bodies were found, one Wednesday night and the other Thursday.

The girls were Louise Prigge and Frances Polikowski. When no water was found in the Prigge girl's lungs and her body bore no signs of violence, vital organs were brought here by Wabasha county authorities in the belief she might have been poisoned. Similar action was taken later when the body of the Polikowski girl was discovered.

Physicians and chemists found no poison in the women's bodies but they said they did discover traces of alcohol.

WHIPS SON IN JAIL

Boy, 18, Takes "Tanning" for Youngstown Theft.

By The Associated Press

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 23—Mrs. Estella Harper appeared at city jail here today asked permission to whip her 18-year-old son, and on receiving it, proceeded to "tan" the youth with his own belt. Police said the boy, booked as "Curly" Harper, must have been lashed more than 50 times without a whimper.

"NO OTHER"

No other woman has displaced his wife in his affections, Maurice Chevalier, famous French musical comedy star and movie actor, declared yesterday after filing a suit for divorce in Paris. (Above) Mme. Chevalier, known on the stage as Yvonne Vallee, was formerly her husband's dancing partner. A Paris newspaper published Chevalier's picture along with that of Mlle. D'Auvia, cabaret singer, but he denied any plans for marriage with another woman. "Yvonne and I wish to be the best of friends but if we lived together another two years we would be enemies," Chevalier said. He charged incompatibility and desertion.

GENEVA ARMS PARLEY ENDS

Nations Approve Resolution Promising Limitation as Conference Closes.

NEGOTIATIONS TO GO ON

Germany and Russia Against Resolution, but Favor Disarmament.

By The Associated Press

GENEVA, Switzerland, July 23—The world disarmament conference which began its work on Feb. 2 adjourned today for an indefinite period after adopting a resolution promising substantial reduction of armaments in its later deliberations.

Soviet Russia and Germany voted against the resolution. Both announced in doing so they were voting for disarmament although they could not support the resolution. The Russian delegate previously had described it as not sufficiently specific, and the German representative objected to its omission of any reference to the equality of all nations in the right to arm.

The vote on the resolution was in the committee of the whole, but the full conference adopted the final part which extends the current armaments truce. This was a unanimous vote with China abstaining.

During the recess important committees of the conference will continue their negotiations on various phases of disarmament.

Arthur Henderson, British chairman of the conference, ended the session with an address supporting the resolution.

"If I were on the floor I would vote for this resolution although it falls far short of my desires," he said.

"I would vote for it because it contains these three declarations:

"That the time has come to effect a comprehensive scheme of disarmament.

"That the nations are firmly determined to achieve the first decisive step involving substantial reduction of armaments.

"That this conference is guided by the general principles underlying President Hoover's proposal for a reduction of approximately one-third in armaments.

"How could I vote against a resolution containing those three declarations?"

This resolution, he said, really puts the conference on the road to disarmament.

May-December Marriage Becomes Faded Romance

Marion Woman, 74, Seeks To Sever Marital Bond with Husband, 27.

A "May and December" marriage was brought before the common pleas court for dissolution yesterday when Mrs. Susan F. Lewis, 74, of 1082 East Center street, filed suit for a divorce from William D. Lewis, 27.

Her husband took her money and spent it, pawned her diamonds, wrecked her automobile and finally brought disgrace and humiliation upon her when he was sentenced to serve a 30-day sentence in the county jail for petit larceny, she charges in the petition.

Lewis now is in jail, serving a sentence imposed by the municipal court for stealing money from the Ben Miley home near Brush Ridge two weeks ago.

Mrs. Lewis asks the court to dissolve the marriage contract and restore her to her former name of Mrs. Susan Fullilove. She and Lewis eloped to Monroe, Mich., Nov. 22, 1930, after a courtship of several months. They became acquainted two years before their marriage and romance flourished as he daily drove past her residence on a city bus route. He drove a city bus several months before and after their marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis gave their ages as 32 and 60 at the time of their marriage, but relatives said there was a 47-year span between their ages.

Gross neglect and extreme cruelty are the grounds on which Mrs. Lewis seeks a decree. He has failed to provide her with the necessities of life, and informed her soon after their marriage that he did not care for her, she states. She asserts that she has been a true and faithful wife. She asks for a court order restraining him from coming to her home.

Mrs. Lewis is the widow of W. A. Fullilove, former Hardin county merchant, and at the time of her marriage was reported well-to-do.

Homer E. Johnson is counsel for Mrs. Lewis.

Coxey Seeks To Replace Hoover on Ohio Ballot

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 23—A mandamus action to compel the secretary of state to place his name on the Ohio ballots as the Republican candidate for president, was threatened today by "General" Jacob S. Coxey, mayor of Massillon.

In a letter to Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown, the leader of the once famous "Coxey's army" said he contemplated the mandamus suit in the state supreme court. He claims his name, and not that of President Hoover, should appear on the ballots in November as the Republican candidate for president, because he received a majority of the vote cast in the May preferential primary. President Hoover did not enter the Ohio primary for the preferential vote.

The letter from Coxey, who is the presidential candidate of the Farmer-Labor party, was turned over to George M. Neffner, election statistician in the secretary of state's office. Neffner said he would reply to the "general," advising him he believed Coxey's contention in the matter was incorrect.

COMMITTEES URGED TO SHOW ACTIVITY

Dr. Sawyer Cracks Mythical "Whip" as Council Members Show Tendency To Lag.

The "big whip" which Dr. Carl W. Sawyer jokingly displayed at the last monthly meeting of the Council of 100 cracked angrily over the heads of the council members last night as he threatened to let the organization pass out of existence if its committees did not forge ahead with their work.

The meeting opened with an abrupt statement from Dr. Sawyer, chairman, that the committees had shown a tendency to give little or no time and thought to their part of the council's work. Either the council will go ahead or it will be broken up and the chairman and a handpicked few will carry on the work, he declared.

Failure of a number of committees to meet or organize since they were appointed several months ago resulted in the chairman's statement.

Gives Complete Report

When Dr. Sawyer called the list of committees last night and asked for reports of their activities, the committee on public officials and public problems replied with the most complete report. This was given by Dr. F. E. Mahla, chairman. The report was of a fact-finding nature, and did not include any definite plans for solution of the problems mentioned.

The report, prepared by members of the committee to throw light on specific questions assigned the committee from complaints listed on the questionnaires. Regarding the reported laxity of officials in the enforcement of liquor laws, the committee reported that the enforcement of the laws in Marion compared favorably with that in cities of the same size, although BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., July 23—An artist in New York, because his sale of antiques didn't turn out so hot, got hostile at us. He said a "William and Mary" mirror only brought a paltry $400.

HOME LOAN BILL SIGNED

President Gives Approval Despite Glass Currency Expansion Rider.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 23—While congress in its session just adjourned saw enactment of a great many reconstruction measures, it will have before it when it returns in December still other proposals designed to better business conditions.

The lawmakers accepted a good number of President Hoover's recommendations intended toward this end, but at the same time they wrote into the nation's statutes a good many of their own.

Added to this list of new statutes was the home loan bank measure which President Hoover signed into law yesterday. It contained many of the features the chief executive recommended last December, but in it too, was the Glass currency expansion rider congress added but to which he objected.

Not Major Detail

In a statement, the President said he did not think that rider "is such as would warrant refusal to approve the measure which means so much to hundreds of thousands of home owners, is such a contribution to their relief; such a contribution to establishment of home ownership; and such an aid to immediate increase in employment."

Clergyman Tosses Wrestler from Ring but Loses Fall.

HINGHAM, Mass., July 23—Urged on by cries of "Toss him, Reverend," a clergyman wrestled a professional matman but lost when the "pro" used a new hold he called a "double cross arm reverse trick and slam."

The Rev. Lex K. Souter, pastor of the Congregational church, proved no "slouch" when he entered the ring last night against Lee Wyckoff, during a charity show. The minister, who weighed only 180 pounds against Wyckoff's 220, tossed his foe into the "orchestra" seats once.

But Wyckoff crawled back and threw the clergyman twice.

VETS WRANGLE OVER STAY IN WASHINGTON

Opposing Leaders Unable To Agree on Staying or Going Home.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 23 — The capital's bonus seekers today found themselves in a new minor war—one started by opposing leaders who could not agree over whether their followers should leave town.

Walter W. Waters, elected commander-in-chief of the bonus expeditionary forces, said they should stay. His insistence brought temporary withdrawal of a police order that the veterans should evacuate government property.

But Roy W. Robertson, leader of the California contingent that refused to ally itself with Waters after leading the recent march on capitol hill, said he expected to have all his men out of town by tomorrow night.

"These men know there is nothing to stay here for except to see Waters strut around with new boots on and a new black cane to swagger with," Robertson said.

ZIEGFELD'S MOTHER NEAR DEATH TODAY

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 23 — Florenz Ziegfeld's mother was near death today—so near that relatives could not tell her of the death of her son.

For days Mrs. Florenz Ziegfeld Sr. has been in a state of coma, brought on by old age and infirmities. She is 83 years old.

She has not recognized members of her family at her bedside for two weeks. A daughter-in-law, Mrs. Carl Ziegfeld, said today the elderly woman would not be told of the producer's death, even if she recovered sufficiently to understand.

HEART ATTACK BRINGS SUDDEN END TO CAREER

Death Comes to Noted N. Y. Theatrical Producer in Hollywood Hospital.

HAD EXPECTED RECOVERY

Wife, Notified of Sudden Change for Worse, Arrives Shortly After Death.

By The Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., July 23—Florenz Ziegfeld, famed theatrical producer for more than 30 years, is dead.

A sudden heart attack in a hospital last night ended an apparent recovery of the "glorifier of the American girl" from a pulmonary and nervous disorder, which dated back to a bout with pneumonia last winter.

Still wearing the film make-up in which she had been working late at night in a movie studio, Billie Burke, actress, wife of the producer, reached his bedside a few minutes after he died.

Only a short time before she had been notified of the sudden change in his condition.

Attack Unexpected

Dr. Marcus Rudwin said Ziegfeld had shown signs of definitely recovering, and that the heart attack was unexpected. The impresario had suffered from heart trouble for years.

Patricia Ziegfeld, his daughter, was at the family home in Santa Monica when she learned of her father's death.

Seeking a complete rest, the originator of "Ziegfeld's Follies," an annual success through the country as well as Broadway for many years, came to New Mexico several weeks ago after recurrent signs of illness following a hard season. A few days ago he came here and entered a hospital, seeming to improve steadily.

Miss Burke recently expressed a wish Ziegfeld would settle down on a farm for the remainder of his life.

Native of Chicago

Ziegfeld, born in Chicago in 1869, entered the theatrical profession when 18, and eventually amassed a fortune through his productions.

His Follies led the trend toward nudity on the stage. A few years ago he insisted he had set out to present nudity "artistically," and deploring what he described as the daring and coarseness of other producers, he decided his glorified American girl was to be almost fully clad.

Influenced by seeming popular demand, however, his last Follies veered again to daring.

In recent years Ziegfeld produced several other stage attractions.

He was married to Billie Burke, stage and screen actress, in 1914. Their daughter was born two years later. Previously Ziegfeld had been married to Anna Held, stage favorite of a generation ago. They were divorced.

His First Venture

Ziegfeld gained his first experience as a show man at the age of 13, when he ran away from home and joined Buffalo Bill's wild west show. His first venture with Buffalo Bill's show was brief, as his parents took him back home and compelled him to resume his schooling. His father conducted the Chicago Musical college and the son devoted 10 years to that in-

C., D. & M. ADVISES REFRIGERATOR BUYERS TO INSPECT KELVINATOR, GENERAL ELECTRIC EXTRA FEATURES

FOR NEXT WEEK
Write an ad (8"x12") for The Wright Transfer & Storage Co. Submit your ad to Wright Transfer & Storage Co. not later than 5 p. m. next Wednesday.

Before the decision is made to buy a specific automatic refrigerator something beyond the commonly accepted conveniences and economies must be obtained. Plus-features are demanded—added features insisted upon—features which made modern refrigeration ultra modern.

It is because these things are demanded by refrigerators that the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Co. has chosen the Kelvinator and the General Electric to handle through its retail store on South Main street.

Kelvinator offers a wonderful plus-feature in its nationwide test-proven ability to freeze ice in 80 minutes. This is accomplished by the new Iso-Thermic tubes, a unit that will freeze ice cubes very rapidly and without adjustments or attention. This unit freezes in about one-half of the normal freezing time, which increases the ice freezing capacity by doing the job quickly. This special compartment freezes without affecting the contents of the food compartment.

Low first cost and unapproached economy of operation are made possible in a great measure by the exclusive "Kold Keeper," which tops the list of economies available in Kelvinator electric refrigeration.

Practically all of the Kelvinator models now have automatically lighted interiors. When the door opens the food chamber is automatically illuminated. When the door closes the light is automatically switched off. This is another of Kelvinator's automatic features.

Fresh vegetables become more crisp and palatable when they are left in the "Kelvin Crisper" for a few hours. The moisture they have lost since being taken from the garden is returned to their cells, and the low temperature adds to their freshness.

A refrigerator is only as good as its cabinet. Efficient design, sturdy construction with plenty of good insulation are needed. They are needed to maintain constant temperatures, to effect a low operating cost. Kelvinator's cabinet division has made cabinets for 51 years and has learned how to make them sturdy and beautiful.

Legs that blend beautifully into the lines of the cabinet are standard equipment on all except the two tallest models.

These legs are high enough to permit easy sweeping; and they are low enough to retain the graceful lines of the cabinet.

Careful attention has been given even to this comparatively minor item of design.

All of thes exclusive features and many more are the result of more than 18 years of Kelvinator pioneering, with exclusive attention to the development of electric refrigeration and to every desirable convenience.

GENERAL ELECTRIC

The General Electric engineers who worked for 15 years to perfect the General Electric refrigerator before offering it to the world, have successfully eliminated the chief causes of trouble found in the conventional type refrigerator.

General Electric offers a very simple piece of machinery, well made and dependable, consisting of but three main moving parts and these hermetically sealed in a protecting dome of steel. By hermetic sealing, the General Electric Co. has been able to build a machine which you never have to oil.

General Electric is an all-steel refrigerator. It is built of steel for strength and durability.

A rubber gasket seals the door opening keeping the cold in and the heat out of the cabinet. It serves the same purpose as the familiar rubber ring used to seal a fruit jar. This gasket is easily detached for replacement.

The General Electric is mounted on legs so that there is plenty of room to clean the floor under the refrigerator. It is sanitary on top, on bottom, inside and out. Shoes under each leg of the refrigerator protect the linoleum on your kitchen floor.

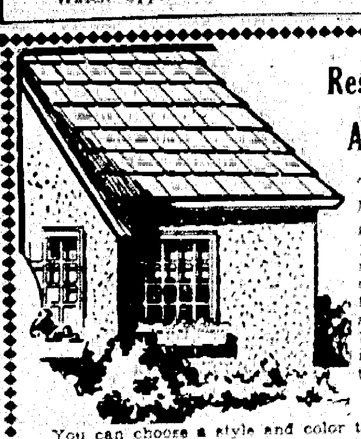
The most important part to keep clean on any electric refrigerator is the chilling chamber. In GE it is called the "Super-Freezer." This is where the ice cubes are made and is as easily cleaned as a cup.

Shelves Convenient

The new sliding shelf feature greatly increases the usable shelf space by permitting easy access to the food near the back.

The automatic door latch is another important GE feature. A gentle push securely locks the door. The latch and hinges with screws embedded in steel will retain their bright luster, being of chrome finish.

The General Electric Co. has built as fine a refrigerator as it is humanly possible to build. More than 15 years of research are responsible. It is as easy to operate as the electric light switch in your kitchen; as easy to clean as your breakfast coffee cup; as free from mechanical worry as your electric meter; strong as a steel bridge and protecting you with the most complete guarantee in the industry.



Restore Beauty and Add Permanence

The proper style of Johns-Manville Asbestos Shingles will solve the roofing problem to your lasting satisfaction. Time and the elements will not harm these permanent, colorful shingles. Fire will not burn them. Water, snow and ice will never rot them.

You can choose a style and color that is particularly suited to your home, and have the shingles put on right over the present roof.

TWO PERSONS KILLED IN CHICAGO VIOLENCE

Policeman Slain by Youths; Another Dies in Machine Gun Hail.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 23—A suburban police officer was slain by four youths he had arrested for questioning and an employe of the criminal courts building machine gunned to death in two outbursts of violence last night.

Three Gary, Ind., youths, one of whom, officers said, admitted shooting Policeman Harold Koehncke of suburban Dolton, were in custody. A fourth was killed. The officer was slain in a car as he attempted to fight it out when the quartet started shooting.

Jack A. Werner, 28, an elevator operator in the criminal courts building, who wore a deputy sheriff's badge, was killed as he drove with a young girl cousin. Another car came alongside, a machine gun belched death, and the killers fled. Miss Margaret Murray, his cousin, fled after the shooting and was believed to have escaped the bullets. Police asserted the slain man had a criminal record dating to 1913. A notebook listing assistant prosecutors, judges and underworld characters, found in his pockets, was examined for a possible clue to the slayers.

At Dolton, Tony Burba, 18, who said he finished a sentence at Pendleton, Ind., prison a month and a half ago, admitted, police said, he shot Officer Koehncke. Burba was wounded three times and asserted police said, "the cop shot me before he died." He was apprehended when he asked a physician to dress his wounds.

YANKS TAKE LEAD IN DAVIS CUP MATCHES

Allison Van Ryn Defeat Germans in Interzone Finals Play.

By The Associated Press

STATE ROLAND GARROS, PARIS, July 23—The United States today won the doubles match to take a lead of two to one over Germany in the interzone final of Davis cup play. Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn defeating Daniel Prenn and Gottfried Von Cramm 6-3, 6-4, 6-1.

The American combination, veterans of three Davis cup campaigns, held the upper hand throughout except for one game in the second set, when the Germans led 3-2 and sent the United States into the final two singles matches favored to win and challenge France for the trophy.

Brilliant individually and masters of double strategy, Allison and Van Ryn yielded only eight games in the match and became stronger as the match continued.

The Germans, both of whom played singles yesterday, showed the effects of their hard matches. Von Cramm never had a chance to make his cunning net game effective and the gymnastics of Prenn availed little against the Americans who held the court like a fort and played fine tennis throughout.

EXTEND SEASON ON WILD DUCK, GEESE

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 23 — The open season on wild duck and geese in Ohio this year will be from Oct. 16 to Dec. 15, according to an order received here today from the federal department of agriculture. Officials of the department said the extended open season was made possible by a general improvement observed this year over the disastrous drought conditions in 1931, when some species of ducks and geese were so seriously affected that the season had to be cut to one month.

HEAVY GUARD TAKES MOUNTAINEER TO JAIL

Suspect in Feud Killing Watched Closely To Prevent Any Violence.

By The Associated Press

PINEVILLE, Ky., July 23—John L. Baker, whose friends said he would never leave Kentucky alive if returned to Clay county to face charges of complicity in a feud killing, was safe in the Bell county jail today after a nine-hour motor trip from Covington under heavy guard.

Baker, charged with being an accessory before the fact in connection with the fatal shooting of Police Judge C. P. Stivers at Manchester, also is under a federal charge of concealing assets in bankruptcy. He was brought to Pineville to face the federal charge first.

The Dixie highway from Covington penetrates the Kentucky mountains and passes not far from Manchester, center of the Baker-White-Howard-Stivers feud of 50 years standing. It was the events of this feud which led witnesses at an extradition hearing in Ohio to testify Baker's life would be in danger if he returned. Baker was captured in Cincinnati.

To forestall any possible violence to their prisoner when they entered the mountains, officers led by U. S. Marshal J. H. Hammons, carried machine guns and tear gas bombs on their motor trip to Pineville.

this city had fewer police than the average city of this size.

Conflicting rulings of courts on phases of the liquor laws, and the unpopularity of the laws with many persons make these laws more difficult to enforce than many others, the committee pointed out.

In answer to the complaint that courts were too lenient with criminals, it was pointed out that many petty criminal offenses did not result in jail sentences or fines because of the heavy cost of keeping prisoners convicted of minor offenses.

Tax Report Given

A report showing that Marion county's delinquent taxes amount to $451,270.45 was read in answer to the complaint that officials have failed to collect delinquencies. Of this total, $253,210.31 is delinquent on real estate, $108,919.02 on personal property and $89,141.12 on special assessments, not including total delinquencies of $50,000 resulting from the February collection this year. Sale of real estate to satisfy tax bills at this time does not appear advisable, the committee pointed out.

The taxation committee, for which a report was submitted by Karl W. Schell, recommended that a study of taxation problems by every citizen, and the exercise of careful choice in the selection of public officials would be the only method of effecting a sweeping reduction in governmental costs necessary before any substantial reduction in taxes can be effected. Following this report, Dr. Sawyer proposed that a questionnaire be prepared for distribution among candidates to determine their sentiments on taxation matters.

Arthur A. Van Atta, reporting for the committee on patronage of home industries, declared that a majority of Marion residents were "unconscious sinners" in the purchase of products brought in from other cities when products of equal merit and almost idential price are made in Marion. He urged that members of the council practice and advocate the purchase of locally prepared products, and form the habit of asking for Marion-made products when shopping. He also reported that a questionnaire, designed to furnish information that will enable the committee to bring Marion manufacturers and wholesalers in more direct contact with consumers, will be circulated among industrial concerns and wholesalers within a few days.

SELECTION OF JURY NEARS COMPLETION

By The Associated Press

IRONTON, O., July 23 — Attorneys in the murder trial of six white men accused of lynching Luke Murray, Atlanta, Ga., Negro, expected to complete the jury today. Testimony will be started Monday.

Murray died mysteriously several weeks ago after several men forcibly removed him from the jail at South Point, O., where he had been held for allegedly threatening a white man with a knife. The Negro's body was found in the Ohio river.

The defendants, Theodore Johnson, Taylor Napier, Clyde Elkins, and Garland, Milford and Lawrence L. Massie, claim Murray drowned after jumping from a rowboat while being taken across the river.

The state, however, contends the six caused his death by beating him and then throwing him in the stream.

Heart Attack Brings Career of Theatrical Producer to Sudden End.

stitution, becoming general manager and director.

His first experience as an impresario came to him partly by accident. During the World's fair in Chicago in 1892 Ziegfeld was placed in charge of the musical entertainment. For this purpose he brought seven military bands from Europe, but still the musical program failed to win popular approval.

He then decided to adopt a general program of entertainment and obtained among others, the services of Sandow, the strong man. Sandow demanded $1,000 a week, a fabulous salary in that period, but finally compromised on ten per cent of the gross receipts. The young show man was so impressed that he immediately arranged a tour for the strong man. He managed Sandow successfully four years.

The next important step in his rapid rise as a producer was his introduction to America of Anna Held, whom he later married. Miss Held's first appearance was in "A Parlor Match." She later starred under Ziegfeld in "French Maid," "Papa's Wife," "The Little Duchess" and "Mlle. Napoleon."

When Follies Started

In 1907, Ziegfeld became associated with the firm of Klaw & Erlanger in the production of the first Ziegfeld Follies, which was to become an annual institution in the theatrical world. So carefully were young women selected for membership in the Follies that Ziegfeld won for himself the reputation of connoisseur of feminine beauty.

Ziegfeld considered as among his most notable successes "Sally," "Kid Boots," and "Louie the Fourteenth."

The producer never grew tired of recounting his adventure with the wild west show. Buffalo Bill was appearing in the Academy of Music at Chicago and following a spectacular demonstration of marksmanship he challenged any member of the audience to duplicate his own performance.

The 15-year-old boy stepped to the stage and acquitted himself so well that the famous trouper invited him to join the show. Ziegfeld accepted the offer and drew $50 for each of the three succeeding weeks before his parents then appeared on the scene.

He was educated in the public schools of his native city and the University of Michigan. His recreations included yachting, golf and cross country riding. He was a member of the Chicago, Athletic, Westchester Biltmore and Yonkers Corinthian Yacht clubs.

10 MEN AND WOMAN RESCUED FROM LAKE

Ohio Coast Guards Save Two Groups When Boats Are Wrecked in Squall.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, July 23 — Ten men and a woman were rescued by coast guards last night after a Lake Erie squall capsized a small sailboat and washed a disabled cabin cruiser against the breakwater in Cleveland harbor.

Four of the men and the woman, Mrs. Wilhelm Deichmann, were thrown into the water when the sailboat overturned. An alert lighthouse keeper who saw the accident, signaled the coast guards for the rescue. They found the victims clinging to the sides of their craft.

C. E. Fink, owner of the motorboat, and three companions were stranded on the breakwater when the accident put their craft in a sinking condition. It went down shortly after the coast guards removed the men from the breakwater.

SEES QUICK ACTION BY NEW LOAN BANK

Senator Forecasts Credit Aid in Three Months Under New System.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 23—A forecast that the credit flow of the new home loan bank system would be started in three months was made today by Senator Watson of Indiana, after a conference with President Hoover at which Watson said organization of the system was discussed.

Watson, senate Republican leader, said the President believed it might take a quarter of a year before the full benefits of the system could be realized. He pointed out that the federal reserve system had not been fully established within 14 months after the act was signed.

The Indianan told newspapermen as he left the White House that he had discussed politics with the chief executive but that most of their conversation centered upon the new home loan system and the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

ment of eight to 12 federal banks to make loans to home owners who can not get the money elsewhere and to building and loan associations, savings banks, homestead associations and insurance companies.

The President's recommendations last December 8 and what congress—including the Democratic house—did about them line up like this:

Mr. Hoover asked more money for federal land banks; congress voted $125,000,000.

He proposed increased taxes; congress passed a measure to raise $1,118,800,000 more.

He wanted the Reconstruction Finance corporation; congress established it with a $3,800,000,000 fund.

Expenditures Cut

He asked economy; congress voted to cut expenditures $120,000,000 by a special bill and the senate set up a committee to study the question during the summer; all appropriations were reduced under the budget estimates.

He wanted to make more paper eligible for discount by federal reserve banks; the bill sponsored by two Democrats—Senator Glass of Virginia, and Representative Steagall of Alabama—did that.

He asked rejection of the dole; direct gifts by the federal government to individuals were not approved.

He suggested the use of federal reserve funds to liberate funds in failed banks; congress did not grant that although the house passed a bill to guarantee deposits in national banks.

He wanted to avoid a general tariff revision; no general revision was attempted but Democrats sent to him for a veto their bill for changes.

He sought adjustment of anti-trust laws to remove injustices; congress has not granted that.

He opposed additional veterans expenditures; congress approved a bill to liberalize bonus certificate loans but turned down cash payment of the bonus.

PLANS TO REMARRY DENIED BY MAURICE

Chevalier Says He and Wife Still Best of Friends; Blames Incompatibility.

By The Associated Press

PARIS, July 23—Maurice Chevalier, movie star who started divorce proceedings yesterday against Yvonne Vallee, today announced he had no future matrimonial plans whatever and that there was no truth in reports linking his name with Marlene Dietrich, the German film star.

"It is untrue that Madame Chevalier refused to live with me after my return from the United States," he said "It is just a question of incompatibility of temperament.

"There is no use trying to make a tragedy of our divorce proceedings. We are still the best of friends and respect each other highly.

"I hope the affair can be settled without disagreeable incidents. We remain friends, but life together has become impossible. Should we attempt to continue together another two years we would surely become enemies.

"I do not love anyone else and have no matrimonial plans."

Chevalier returned from Hollywood less than a month ago. His wife used to be his partner in the old days in the Paris music halls, long before he won fame in the movies.

War Foes Plan Sea Flight as Peace Crusade

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 23—Two former World war fliers, who drilled at each other with machine guns over the western front 15 years ago, planned today a trans-Atlantic flight in the interest of peace.

They are Baron Von Schleich, once the "black knight" of the kaiser's flying warriors, and Major Christopher Draper, the "mad major" of Great Britain's war-time army of the air.

They plan to make the westward flight some time in the near future, they said, sitting side by side in the same cock-pit.

"Fifteen years ago we fought each other over the battle front," Baron Von Schleich said. "Now we are going on a peace crusade across the Atlantic, and our only bitterness arises from those misspent efforts in the war years.

"I have come to realize the futility of war. We propose to make a long tour of all the big cities and try to instill in people's minds the ghastliness of war. We want to meet Eddie Rickenbacker, Colonel Bishop (Canadian airman) and other American aces and try to get them to join our peace crusade."

FOURTH MAN PAYS IN FARMER'S DEATH

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 23—Four men had paid with their lives today for the slaying of John Kidney, 75 year-old farmer-blacksmith of Pickaway county. Two others convicted of complicity in the crime are serving life terms.

The last to pay the supreme penalty was Arthur Little, 39, Negro who died in the electric chair at Ohio penitentiary last night. Two other Negroes, Lacey Adams and Walker Brown, and a white man, Henry Loudermilk, were put to death last month.

Kidney was beaten to death and robbed of his life's saving of $400 the night of Dec. 10. His invalid sister, Sarah Kidney, was bound to her bed.

Little was pronounced dead at 8:47 p. m., 10 minutes after he walked unaided to the execution chamber.

The Mind of Christ

A SERMONETTE
BY REV. JAMES DODD,
Minister of Central Christian Church.

"Have this mind in you, which was also in Christ Jesus."—Philippians 2:5.

THE apostle is speaking of the mind of Christ, and bids us have that mind in ourselves. The world is desperately sick with its own social, political, economic and religious status. Man in his triumph of the modern mind has reached out to grasp "the being on an equality with God." In the light of human achievement we are ready to say with Henely:

"It matters not how strait the gate,
How charged with punishment the scroll,
I am the Master of my fate;
I am the Captain of my soul."

Still, in his humanism man has not been able to attain to his desire. In his brilliant thinking he has found himself wandering and baffled in a maze of blind alleys. After trying all human expedients one is forced to the conclusion that brains and brawn can not end unemployment; that brains and brawn can not feed the soul hungering and thirsting after righteousness. We ask, "What shall we do?"

Only a new type of individual can solve the grave situations in our social, political, economic and religious life today. We have not been able to find this type of individual in secular history. Man's thinking has been warped by his own desires. The apostle gives us the answer when he says, "Have this mind in you, which was also in Christ Jesus."

In our mad rush for a panacea for our ailments have we given the mind of Christ a fair trial? Have we been willing to empty ourselves? Have we been humble? Have we been willing to become obedient unto God though it meant a cross with its death and shame? How does our social life compare with the mind of Christ when we see every one living for his own end? How does our political mind compare with the mind of Christ when we are founding it on beer? How does our economic life compare with the mind of Christ when we see the "gifts of God" monopolized by the few? How does our religious thinking based on competition, statistics and external ritual compare with the mind of Christ? These are questions which cause even we so-called Christians to blush with shame.

We are told that because Jesus emptied Himself, because He humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, yea the death of the cross, "God, therefore, highly exalted Him and gave unto Him a name which is above every name: that in the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things on earth and things under the earth, and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord to the glory of God the Father." His mind is able to triumph over all things.

The mind of Christ is not taught. It is caught. We read that, "He chose twelve that they might be with Him." It was not His words that caused them to give their lives for His sake. It was the life He shared with them. The only way that we can have the mind of Christ is to live with Him. He said, "He that willeth to do the will shall know the doctrine." This means that you and I as individuals must live with Him. We dare not begin with society at large, we must begin with ourselves. "Have this mind in you which was also in Christ Jesus."

When we live with Him, and think His thoughts, then, and then only will we be able to find our way out of the cul-de-sac into which we have precipitated ourselves. Then, and then only shall we learn not to "count the being on an equality with God, a thing to be grasped." In humbling ourselves, in serving others, in having in us that mind, "which was also in Christ Jesus," we shall triumph with Him so that our perplexities, whether they be in heaven, on earth, or under the earth, shall bow before us, in His name. "And every tongue shall confess that Jesus Christ is Lord unto the glory of God the Father."

Marion Loan Companies Follow Plan of State

Policy Recommended by Ohio Superintendent Adopted Here Some Time Ago; Certificates of Deposit May Be Applied on Mortgages.

Marion building and loan companies for several months have been following, to some extent, the course of action recommended to all Ohio loan companies recently by Frank F. McGuire, state superintendent of building and loans, a checkup here today disclosed.

This course is the acceptance by the loan companies of certifiates of deposit as credit against mortgage loans. With this plan definitely recommended by the state superintendent instead of frowned upon as in the past, the local companies may enlarge their activities in this direction, they indicated.

The general plan of accepting certificates of deposit as credit against mortgage loans is this: If a depositor has $500 in a loan company and also owes that loan company $500 on a mortgage loan, he may turn in his certificate of deposit for the amount and have the mortgage loan cancelled. This course of action is recommended only to loan companies which are "on notice," or which can not pay their depositors in full at once.

As a general rule, it was pointed out by building and loan company officials here, off sets of deposits against mortgage loans will be made only where both the withdrawal account and the mortgage loan appear in the same name or belong to the same person or corporation. Only in a few instances has anyone been permitted to apply deposit accounts of another person to the payment of a mortgage loan.

In cases where the transaction is known to be bona fide, offsets have been taken here for several months, loan company executives said. The companies following this practice to some extent are the Marion Building, Savings & Loan Co., the Home Building, Savings & Loan Co., and the People's Building, Savings & Loan Co.

The plan was designed to put more money in circulation and facilitate the movement of real estate. Along this same line, loan company officials said that certificates of deposits have been accepted in a number of instances as partial or full payment for properties sold to depositors by the loan companies.

All Marion building and loan companies have been "on notice" since March, 1931. Deposit withdrawals can be made only in periodical installments.

My Beauty Hint

BY MADGE EVANS

THE arms should be included in any beauty treatment, and if one has not a beauty specialist handy one can easily give ones' own hands the proper kind of weekly massage.

First comes a thorough cleansing of the hands and arms with warm water, soap and a hand brush. When hands and arms are dry, massage them with olive oil in which lemon juice has been mixed, using the same motion as in putting on gloves.

The oil mixture is forced into the pores with hot towels. This is followed by another soap and water bath, after which corn meal is rubbed on.

GOSSIP SAYS RICHES OF ZIEGFELD GONE

Broadway Shakes Head and Pictures Girls' Glorifier as "Broke."

trie—such as "Of Thee I Sing" and "Face the Music" was packing them in.

Ziegfeld, always a fighter, hit back.

"What is sophistication?" he sneered in advertisements five columns wide. He said no one could define it—and Americans preferred the "old-fashioned" sentiment, fun, music, staged in the grand manner. To prove it he revived his "showboat"—and the critics, as well as the public, ate it up.

It was a great victory, he considered, although the quick closing of "Hot-Cha" and his illness robbed it of some sweetness.

Ziegfeld was a grand spender. Across the continent, in search of new beauty to glorify, he traveled in private cars, munching bon-bons pulled from the pockets of $200 suits. He took his own chef with him. His motor cars were imported. He argued with critics by telegraph—thousands upon thousands of words. "Don't spare the expense," seemed to be his motto.

Liked Publicity

Publicity was a thing he never lacked. When Marilyn Miller, a name then glowing in tall letters as the star of "Sally," announced she was quitting Ziegfeld, there was a great to-do. She was back under his wing later.

Once he said that gentlemen prefer brunettes and 20 blond members of his revue voted to strike unless he retracted. In 1926 he issued solemn statements taking the blame for the era of stage nudity, and asking the public to support only clean shows.

"I'm ashamed to be in the revue business with all this going on," he would say.

A long string of suits kept his lawyers busy. Once Myrtle Bauer, formerly a member of his glorified troupe, sued him for $5,000, charging that his police dog maimed her Pekingese.

Despite his aversion of sophistication, he kept in step with developments. It was commonly supposed he had gone to Hollywood to look into the possibility of abandoning the stage for talkie production.

Just Things

—BY EDNA S. DUTTON—

Tan Coats

ACQUIRING a coat of tan is as much importance as having a becoming new gown, but it really must be becoming. And you'll agree with us, some of them are just too grand for words. But there are folks who just can't keep from smothering a couple of gasps when someone announces that they are going to deliberately set out to get tanned. Of course you can guess who they are, they are the folks who never can forget the "admonishings" they received for not keeping their sunbonnet on. And wouldn't you like to see a sunbonnet again? Anyone would have to agree, they were works of art and some of the stitching was gorgeous. There were sunbonnets for gardening, sunbonnets for going up town, the old one you used to milk the cows in and the one that you wore for an afternoon call. And whoever heard of a sleeveless mother hubbard to let your arms get all freckled? Of course your legs didn't matter for you covered them up with those long black stockings that just absolutely absorbed the sun rays, on Sundays. It never could have been as hot in those days as it is now or some folks wouldn't be here to tell the story.

Philosophy

IN these days of wondering what is going to happen next it's rather heartening to hear something to cheer one along the way and mayhap bolster up his courage for the next bump. We heard a pretty good line with which to dismiss a bad bargain or at least set one's conscience at ease. A town character in a village not more than 100 miles from here had the unhappy faculty of doing things which did not meet with the approval of the strong arm of the law and consequently he was a familiar figure around the jail. His theory of life was summed up in one phrase, "if a fellow does the best he kin do, that's the best he kin do." His misdemeanors eventually took him from the village jail to the county bastile and when his time was up he returned only to beat up on friend wife and the evening train saw him enroute again to be a guest at the county jail. His last words as the train pulled out were "if a fellow does the best he kin do, that's the best he kin do."

Impetus of Confidence.

It would be a spirit deadened by repeated evidences of adversity that could not sense the penetration of new confidence into various sections of the business community. It would be a spirit made overcautious by countless rebuffs that would not take some heed of this highly important phenomenon.

There never has been a denial that psychology is an important factor in business conditions or that loss of confidence has been one of the fundamental factors in bringing about the unfavorable condition known as depression. Arguments concerning the importance of psychology relative to other factors have been numerous, but in the mass they have tended to prove that mental attitudes are parts of the combination of troubles which have made this nation miserable.

Overt signs that there was an improvement in confidence in the tail-corn country were reported several weeks ago. As if to illustrate the tremendous power of the psychological factor higher livestock prices were seized upon eagerly all over the nation as part of the foundation for a new structure of confidence. Timid spirits who had been forecasting revolution and disaster were changed overnight into champions of reasonable optimism. It was enough to know that somewhere improvement was visible.

Recommendations by the banking and industrial committee of the fourth federal reserve district for a more lenient credit attitude by banks for small business enterprises is another ounce of energy for a new impetus of confidence. True, it is indirect, there is in it more of hope than of accomplishment. Is not hope, however, the enemy of fear? Is not recognition by responsible men in the federal reserve district of the possibility of restoring to some degree the credit on which business normally is conducted justification for hope? It is.

Manifestation of confidence is the beginning of the upturn. Repercussions of the deflation which started three years ago will continue, with disastrous effects, but the force of the business calamity which has swept the United States is spent. It may be said with reasonable certainty that hopeful signs will be more numerous from now on than discouraging signs.

Merrily Married.

The census bureau's machinery whirs and rattles through its disconnected story of what is happening to the population of the United States of America. In the new installment, one figure is likely to get attention more easily than the rest.

The figure is 5.8; the number of marriages performed for every divorce that was granted. It wouldn't be a pleasant one for brides and grooms to remember on their wedding days. Sociologists, recalling that 20 years ago it was 12.2, don't like to remember it at any time. Popular as divorce is, it is not advanced as a beneficial social treatment.

Its use declines during depressions, but so does the number of marriages and more rapidly. Looking at divorce and marriage in terms of geography and population, it is found that both were less frequent than usual in the east, where people complain most about the depression; slightly above average in the Middle West; high in the West. In the South, where romance flowers alike in good times and bad, there were more marriages than usual and fewer divorces.

On the whole, however, they were affected by the common difficulty of the times—scarcity of money. Statistics for previous periods of depression show the same slump. The federal census bureau has records of marriages and divorces in the United States every year from 1887 to 1906, and from 1922 to the present. There was an increase in the number of marriages in every one of the years covered except six—1894, 1904, 1924, 1928, 1930 and 1931. Of the six, all but 1928 were years of business depression; good times that year were at least 50 per cent imaginary. In line with a favorite popular belief that this is the worst of all depressions, the decline in the marriage rate is greater than it ever has been before.

Vice Presidential Hush.

John Nance Garner has no intentions of being satisfied with a title. Predictions that the collective ear would be cocked as frequently to catch the waves of oratory from Texas as it would be to listen to those from New York, a more fitting broadcast station for the Democratic presidential campaign are coming true. Mr. Garner is stomping over his state's baked soil in the good old Roman fashion, with one foot on the broad back of loquaciousness and the other on tactlessness. He is committed to a policy of noisiness.

Making him vice presidential candidate in a good Democratic year should have sobered the picturesque and garrulous Texan, but in daring to hope it would his party's leaders figured without those same manifestations of energy which made him a valuable man in the first place. Mr. Garner's fault, if it were to be admitted, is his unwillingness to pull his punches, to rein in his steeds to accommodate the slow-moving Democratic nominee for president. He is accepted man on a rational ticket.

The situation is complicated further by the necessity for Democrats backing a man who fancies himself a radical, to make a strong appeal to the conservative element. This there will be an attempt to suggest, by the New York candidates to the conservative community. In conservative eastern districts Mr. Roosevelt will be made to appear to stand on his platform, which, like the Republican platform is conservative. Elsewhere, if there is anything to be gained by it he will be made to appear as ready to teeter on the edge of it or jump off completely. The illusion is threatened, however, by Mr. Garner, whose disturbing talk is so loud that it can not be confined. What may be food for the Texas political audience, in short, may be poison elsewhere.

Democrats have caught themselves a vice presidential candidate who seems intent on lifting that job from harmonious obscurity, from the candidate stage straight through to the last day of the successful candidate's term. Unfortunately, that wasn't the idea of giving him a place on the ticket.

For the Fatherland.

Many Americans have longed to do what the German government under Franz von Papen is trying to do—stamp out communism and socialism. However few of them can find words of approval for Germany's action as they see it in perspective. They condemn it as high handed and unbefitting a republic.

The same action would look different, probably, if they were responsible for it. In the United States an equivalent situation would be created if Republicans, Democrats, Farmer-Laborites and Progressives were to combine their forces for the common purpose of scotching the "parlor pinks" and "flaming reds" who are a constant annoyance. The scotching would be done in the name of the United States, of course. Military force would be used, there would be slogans' violence and injustice—and the scotchers would feel very virtuous. Incidentally, the Communists and Socialists, including, as is the case in the German republic, some of the best minds of the nation, would feel greatly abused. They could charge Americans with all sorts of desertions from the principles of free speech and other supposedly inalienable rights.

There is no power on earth that can stop the growth and progress of a rising minority when it represents an issue of wide general interest. Persecution of Christians spread their religion over the world. The slaughter of Russian revolutionists caused the creation of a communistic state. England marched against the feeble colonies and made them a mighty nation. The Spanish monarchy yielded to Republicans. So did the French kings; so did the Hohenzollern dynasty.

But when minorities develop sufficiently to be classed as majorities room is made for more minorities. Germany, a struggling republic, has compromised with the Monarchists. Together, they now face the Communists and Socialists. It may be decades before there is another change. There may be no change involving Communists and Socialists; they may not appeal to a sufficient number of people. But if they do, one or both will prevail for a time eventually. Change is the first law of government.

Althaea Rosea.

There may be nothing in a name, but, if that really be a dependable rule, exceptions must exist to prove it. There is, for example, "Althaea Rosea," the familiar hollyhock.

There are many flowers with Latin names that drop like honeyed words from the tongue and familiar names that bite like acid. There are many, too, with familiar names that call up visions of loveliness and Latin names that forbid attempts at pronunciation. But "Althaea Rosea"—hollyhock—is a perfect combination.

How well they fit the cheerfully condescending dignity of its owner. They speak completely in themselves of the abundant grace that enables the stateliest of flowers to appear at its best in places that would destroy the artificial beauty of a lesser garden personality.

Rowing serenely at the door of a humble cottage or shedding its loveliness in a garden of distinguished companions the hollyhock is equally self-contained—mistress of the situation. It has an abundance of nature's most precious gift to living things—charm.

This is its season. Untended, unsolicited, its perennial reappearance is a climax to its friends. They never forget to look forward to its blooming, to remember with pleasure its latest appearance. There is no forgetting "Althaea Rosea"—hollyhock to you, ladies and gentlemen of the friendly garden circle.

Comment of the Press

BORN TO SPEAK.

In the current issue of a weekly magazine is the story of a big industrial engineer's efforts to become a public speaker and of how he succeeded. It is true to life.

This man had shuddered at the mere thought that he had been invited to make a speech. All his life he had been sticking to his technical subjects and letting mute eloquent ones do the talking. But the invitation set him to thinking. It flattered him. And finally he succumbed. The first speech was a frost. He stammered and stuttered, forgot his lines, knocked over the water pitcher and in every way gave proof that he never was cut out for an orator. But the bug had bitten him. He tried again. And finally, as in the manner of all good orators, became the successful candidate to a high political office.

Oratory is all right. But it ruins some men. They are never the same after they find out that they really can get up before an audience and talk.

But William Rockhill Nelson, the distinguished founder of the Kansas City Star was never swerved from his deep founded conviction that he never could be a speaker.

In letters recently published, Mr Nelson expressed himself. When the dean of the University of Missouri, Walter Williams, invited Mr. Nelson to speak at "Editors' week" at Columbia, Mo., the publisher of the Star replied:

I am greatly flattered by your suggestion that I break the rule of a lifetime and appear in public on the stage. Some people, I know, are always dead anxious to do what they have no natural fitness for. The more unfit some men are to make public speeches, the more eager they seem to do it. But I discovered at a very early day that I was not cut out for a public speaker, and having some regard for my reputation I have always tried to confine myself to what I can do with at least a degree of respect.

Highway is he who is aware of his own shortcomings. On the other hand, many orators are made by the ordeal of experience and necessity.—Toledo Times.

Daily Guide to Health

BY DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND.

"Yellow Jaundice" Gives Warning.

If you have ever seen a person with "yellow jaundice," you will appreciate the annoyance of this condition. Jaundice is not a disease, but a symptom of a disease, and it results from bile entering the blood.

Bile formed by the liver and stored in the gallbladder, is an important product. It stimulates intestinal action and is necessary for the absorption of fatty foods. When the flow is obstructed and the bile does not reach the intestines as it should, it enters the blood and discolors the skin, which becomes yellow or greenish yellow, and marked itching follows. This is the condition commonly called jaundice.

Jaundice may be caused by any inflammation of the gastro-intestinal tract of the bile passages or gallbladder; it may show that gallstones are obstructing the passageway, or it may indicate disease of the liver, pancreas or blood.

This condition is sometimes seen in new born babies and is then spoken of "icterus neonatorium"—terribly big words! It occurs on the second or third day after birth and may persist for a few days or weeks, but it is not serious.

The most common factor in jaundice is a condition known as acute catarrhal jaundice. Frequently found in children and young adults. The cause is not known positively, but it is believed to be due to a catarrhal inflammation of the lining of the upper intestinal tract and of the bile passages.

In this disease the afflicted person complains of mild headache, dizziness, nausea and vomiting and these symptoms increase in severity if the patient refuses to go to bed. There is no fever, but the yellow discoloration of the skin increases and the patient is noticeably irritable. In some cases the skin symptoms may exist for a long time without any other discomfort. As a rule the attack lasts from three to six weeks.

Treatment of this disease consists essentially of rest and colorful diet, and it is advisable that the patient remain in bed while the nausea, vomiting and jaundice continue.

A light soft diet should be given. It may include toast, gruels, junket, custards, rice pudding, cereals, fruits and vegetables, but only skimmed milk, for no fat of any kind should be included. Daily elimination is essential but severe purging is not advised. Hot applications, such as a hot water bag or stupes, should be applied over the liver region.

In severe cases the gallbladder is sometimes drained by the use of the so-called "duodenal tube" — a small rubber tube which is swallowed by the patient. Through this tube a warm solution is used to wash the gallbladder and its passages, and this aids in overcoming the inflammation.

Acute catarrhal jaundice is not an important disease but all cases of jaundice which persist are serious, for, if neglected, serious consequences may result. Jaundice demands the personal attention and treatment of a physician.

Glimpses of the Past

TEN YEARS AGO.

It was Sunday, July 23, 1922.

A survey of trade conditions for the preceding week reported from financial circles of New York City showed that industrial activity of the country had been considerably retarded by the railway and coal strikes.

At the eleventh annual reunion of the Jacob Schultz family held at Garfield park, officers were elected, headed by Frank J. Schultz, as president.

Mr and Mrs W. H. Likins celebrated their fifty-first wedding anniversary and Mr. Likins' seventy-second birthday anniversary at the home of their son Edgar, in Kirkpatrick.

Weddings solemnized in Marion included: Miss Opal James and John W. Hill, both of near Agosta, married by Dr. J. D. Darling at the Wesley M. E. parsonage on Orchard street; Miss Pauline Glasgow and Robert P. Watkins, both of Marion, married by Rev. C. L. Allen at Calvary Evangelical church and Miss Ruby E. Smith and Harley F. Johnston, both of Marion, married by Rev. R. M. Gow at the Fite Memorial Baptist parsonage on Davids street.

Thirty persons in attendance at a picnic held at Keller's woods north of Bucyrus were taken ill of ptomaine poisoning following a dinner served in celebration of the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Elizabeth Lindsay of Martel.

The Marion baseball team was defeated by the Tiffin Merchants on the local grounds 11 to 1. Colegrove and Gassaway pitched for Marion.

A. R. Jones, mayor of Elyria and C. C. Crabbe of London, author of the state prohibition enforcement act, were the principal speakers at a meeting of the Marion County Dry Enforcement league on the Central Junior High school grounds. Rev. M. L. Buckley, Central Christian church pastor, presided. Mayor Jones said prohibition enforcement in Elyria was a success and that he had collected over $25,000 in fines the preceding year.

The third annual shoot of the Marion Gun club was held at the club grounds north of the city with many of Ohio's best marksmen taking part. In the professional class J. C. Day of Cincinnati was high with 143 out of a possible 150, and in the amateur class first prize was won by F. M. Edwards of Columbus with 147.

Highlights of Ohio History

BY J. H. GALBRAITH

BIBLE-IN-SCHOOL FIGHT.

Just 50 years before Tennessee had her Bible in the schools fight, with the late William J. Bryan and Clarence Darrow as principals, Ohio had such a fight of her own. It helped determine the election of 1875 in which Rutherford B. Hayes defeated William Allen for reelection. But for the breaking of the controversy, the Republican candidate for governor that year might have been Alphonso Taft, father of the late chief justice.

The question of daily Bible reading in the schools was being debated by the school board of Cincinnati. An injunction restraining the board from forbidding it was secured. Judge Taft was a member of the superior court to which the case soon came. The injunction was granted, two to one, Judge Taft dissenting. Later the state supreme court reversed the superior tribunal and approved Judge Taft's contention.

In the meantime, the trouble was kept alive by a bill in the legislature known as the Graham bill, providing that inmates of jails and public institutions generally should have such religious ministrations as their respective religions called for. With the question before the fore, it was well that Judge Taft did not enter the race, for even Hayes, who took the religious question out of the campaign won by only about 5,000 votes.

The Word of God

Daily Talk to Parents

BY ALICE JUDSON PEALE

Stupidity is thought of generally as a simple fixed quality. That it is by no means always just this has been definitely shown through recent psychological researches.

There are cases on record where children who have been proved lacking in intelligence by every known test subsequently have demonstrated better than average mental capacity.

Such was the case of Emma considered by all her teachers hopelessly dull—a moron.

When finally her difficulties reached such a point that she fell for hours into a curious dream-like state about which later she could remember nothing she was placed in the hands of a psychiatrist.

Her treatment, which prolonged itself over many months, showed quite definitely how she had acquired her "stupidity."

Simply stated, it was the result of a profound disappointment. At home she had felt with reason that her brother was the favorite of both father and mother. All efforts to compete with him for their love or for their attention had failed.

Convinced by the setbacks she received that she was stupid she gave up trying.

This attitude served no good purposes. It punished no one. They had failed to love her and had thought her stupid—and then they should have a daughter of whom they would be ashamed.

It punished herself for the resentment she felt toward them for their unloving attitude.

It protected her from disappointment. She would not dare to be loved, to compete—and so would not fail.

Playing dumb was for her a solution for her emotional conflicts. When these were understood properly the stupidity disappeared.

New York Day by New York

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, July 23.—The season is [illegible] ham is [illegible] a corner of Palm Beach. The [illegible] the [illegible] where he is written [illegible] accounts of [illegible]. The Editor [illegible] dreams with his head between paws alongside my chair. To a cat-fanciers, they are symbols of the rich men of immigrance.

And I say here was a fat-head and let them get away with it. Both fancies are used to mechanical feeding arising at the same hour daily, walking at stated intervals the same course and sleeping in the same fashion. Break that routine and you house a couple of unbridled hellions.

At daybreak this morning my wife and I were called away by an emergency and did not return until mid afternoon. A servant was told to take the dogs for the usual walk, feed them and then enjoy a holiday until dinner time. He carried out my program to the letter.

Upon returning we noticed both mutts came to the door sheepishly, jumped on half-heartedly and slunk away like the ignoble cads they are. So my wife went to her part of the house and I went to mine. We waited for each other to eat in unison.

She shrieked: "Come here and see this." I screamed: "I wish you'd look here." We met halfway the house and I persuaded her to see my's le first. She gazed upon a large disemboweled pillow that had once been an accessory of an extremely comfortable lounging chair.

"You think that's something," she sniffed. "Well, come with me." So I did. And you know that pair of breakfast pajamas I bought her at Cannes last year? Of course you don't. How could you? But it gives you an idea. You should get a peak at what happened to them.

They were not only torn to ribbons, but a table with a vase had been upset in what must have started a May-pole dance until the party got through. If you think dogs can't reason, how do you account for their continued absence? Answer that and quit mumbling and rubbing one foot over the other.

A quick stamp on the floor will always bring the dear Boston and all you have to do is chirrup softly and the Scalyham comes like a bat out of the bad place. Off I went to work. Now and then I'd look up. One would be peeping around one door and the other around another. "Bad dogs," I'd growl, and they'd slink off returning at short intervals. Finally I forgot about them and then [illegible] all the way in.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

Taking a Risk

SONDRA shrugged her shoulders. "It's no answer to one question to ask another," she said.

She expected that Anderson would laugh, and she said quickly, "I'm sorry. I didn't mean to be disagreeable—and after a moment, 'Thank you for your letter, John.'"

"The honor is mine," he answered gravely.

He talked very little to her during dinner—devoting himself to the woman on his other side, and Sondra felt piqued.

Later in the evening when he asked if she would care to go to the races with him the following day she said coldly:

"Isn't there someone else you would rather take?"

He checked a smile.

"If there was, should I ask you?"

"You might—if you thought I expected you to."

"Isn't that rather an insult—to yourself?"

She flushed a little.

"You seemed rather engrossed with Mrs. Layton at dinner time I thought," she said resentfully.

"I was trying to spare you the necessity of talking to me—after what you said."

Sondra sighed. "Life's such a muddle," she said, unconsciously echoing the words Flora had spoken earlier in the evening.

"That needs explaining," Anderson told her lightly.

"Does it?"

She looked at him rather wistfully, then suddenly she said:

"John, has it ever occurred to you—what people think of us?"

"Of you and me?"

"Yes."

"I never trouble my head what people think."

She was silent for a moment, then she said: "Flora came into my room this evening, and . . . that money was lying on the dressing-table."

"Well?"

"I didn't like it."

"The remedy is in your own hands."

"What do you mean?"

"Only that you should not leave money lying on your dressing table; it might be stolen."

"You're splitting straws," she said rather impatiently. "Flora knows quite well that I can't dress as I do—on what she gives me."

"She must have known that for some time."

"Yes—but . . . it was only tonight—that I realized it."

"Why tonight?"

"I don't know; at least—" she broke off. She knew well enough—it was Mark who made her realize it; Mark's love for her and his trust.

They were both silent for a moment, then Anderson said with an effort:

"And the outcome of all this is that you will not come to the races with me tomorrow."

"Do you want me to come?"

He laughed a little.

"I am not an eloquent man. If I went on my knees to you, it would be done in such a clumsy and unconvincing way that—"

"You're making fun of me," she protested. "It's not kind, John—you hurt me."

"My dear—" he said. "Are you sure you are not hurting yourself—and quite unnecessarily?"

She felt the tears in her eyes, and she bit her lip angrily.

"I don't know what you mean."

"I don't mean anything except that in spite of people like your sister, it is quite possible for a man to wish to give....friendship to a women—without asking for anything in return. I hoped I had made you realize that long ago, Sondra."

She broke out impulsively. "You're much too good to me. I'm not worth any one's affection.... I'm so selfish....some day you'll be sorry."

"When I am, I'll tell you, and in the meantime, what about tomorrow? You'd better say yes, Sondra—because I'm going away at the end of the week."

"Going away?" She did not know if she was relieved or sorry. "Oh, where are you going?"

"No further than Europe, but I may be gone for some time."

"I shall miss you."

"Will you? That's kind."

She was struck by the sadness of his eyes.

"Why are you going?" she asked.

He smiled. "Perhaps for a rest—perhaps to give you a rest."

"You don't really think that I meant I was tired to death of you?" she asked.

"If you did, that's not what is driving me away. I arranged to go yesterday."

"You didn't tell me."

"I thought I would keep it for a pleasant surprise."

She flushed and her eyes looked mortified.

"Now you're being unkind again."

"Not intentionally, Sondra. Quite the reverse."

"I wish you would say what you really mean."

"Very well then. I mean that I believe you will be glad to know that I am out of New York for a time; to know that you will not meet me at every street corner and in every one's drawing-room. To feel that you will be sent in to dinner with some one else as I shall not be there—"

"And all this because of what I said this evening. I didn't mean it?"

"I have already told you that I made all my arrangements to go away, yesterday."

She sat very still, looking away from him into the crowded room.

There was a queer feeling in her heart which she could not explain. She wanted him to go, and yet she resented it because he knew that she wanted him to go; yesterday she would unhesitatingly have said that there was nothing in the world John Anderson would not do for her, but tonight she had the strange feeling that she had lost some of her power over him. If she asked him to stay—she spoke suddenly. "Don't go, John—I shall be lonely without you."

"I must go."

"Even if I ask you to stay?"

"Even if you ask me to stay."

She said with quick anger. "Perhaps I was not so wrong after all in what I said—that you are tired of me."

He answered quietly. Perhaps our friendship is too precious to me to risk weariness either on your side or mine."

She stood up, laughing rather recklessly.

"Very well—but don't forget that sometimes it is a case of 'Out of sight, out of mind.'—"

Her voice broke on a little discordant note.

How could she have said that—with Mark going further from her with every passing moment. Her face fell into lines of bitter weariness, and Anderson answered—

"All my life, I have been willing to take risks. Nothing worth while is ever achieved without a certain amount of risk."

She looked at him with defiant eyes.

"Perhaps this will be the exception that proves the rule," she said.

Anderson smiled.

"I don't think so," he answered quietly.

It was raining hard

Sondra stood at the window of Flora's drawing-room, drumming her fingers on the window down which the big drops fell in an endless stream.

The street was deserted save for a postman.

It was a month since Mark Merriman sailed, and already the first sense of bitter desolation and unhappiness had grown dim in Sondra's heart.

She no longer woke up at night, her face drenched in tears, she no longer went listlessly through the days, feeling that life had ended, and she had stopped ticking off the date on the calendar with a red pencil

With the growth of the long spring days, she had taken a fresh interest in clothes, and she was looking forward with pleased anticipation to spending the month of June in Massachusetts with Beatrice Taylor.

It seemed queer.

As she looked out at the pitiless rain and watched the postman making his way from door to door, there was a strange little feeling of shame in Sondra's heart that she had—if not forgotten Mark already—at least she had learned to do without him.

Harvard Students Will Speak for Peace Here

Will Address Church and Luncheon Groups Next Week.

Engvall Wheeler

Advocating greater understanding of international goodwill as a basis for perpetual peace, two young men, Coburn T. Wheeler of Petersboro N. H., and Charles A. Engvall of Minneapolis Minn., are in Marion in one of four peace caravans now touring Ohio under sponsorship of the Quakers and the Young People's Religious Union of the Unitarian church.

They will give a number of speeches before groups in luncheon meetings, church and Sunday school groups and other meetings next week, to discuss such aspects of international relations as disarmament, the League of Nations and the World court, foreign trade, war debts and reparations, pacifism military training, war attitudes, the church's contribution to world peace the place of schools in training world-mindedness, the relation of children to peace, and the new patriotism.

Both young men have just completed two years of study at Harvard university. In a recent stay in Seneca county, they addressed six luncheon clubs, 20 churches and Sunday school groups and other meetings, Engvall said. They will give a public lecture and two radio talks over station WEAO at Ohio State university within the next month, he said. Both have prepared for their part in the peace movemnt at the Haverford Institute on International Relations.

Arrangements have been made for them to speak in Mt. Gilead churches Sunday, and at the Epworth M. E., Forest Lawn Presbyterian, and Calvary Evangelical Sunday schools. They will also appear at the Central Christian C. E. society meeting Sunday. They have been scheduled to address the Y's Men's club Monday night. Arrangements for them to address groups may be made at the Y. M. C. A.

and used to summon the other man.

Our return journey, I also dismissed with a word or two, but when I had finished Harry Underwood said significantly:

"A well-chanted saga, with the exception of the details of the chase. I imagine Ronald could unfold a more graphic tale of the activities of one M. Graham.

"But we'll waive that for the present. I'm most interested in that voice from the darkness. As you tell it, and your memory can always be trusted, he sounded like a real, honest-to-God mountain moonshiner, defying the 'revenooers.' What did you think of him?"

League of Nations Moves to Hollywood, Will Says After Visit to Olympic Camp

BY WILL ROGERS

WELL all I know is just what I read in the papers, or what I run into. I have prowled around the world quite a bit to try and see a lot of different kinds of people, but right here yesterday almost on my own doorstep I saw the biggest conglomeration of breeds and nationalities I ever saw. The League of Nations has moved right to Hollywood.

How it all happened I went out to the Olympic Village, that's the place all these foreign and domestic athletes are stabled. There is just about 160 acres of solid cross breeds. Its built on a high hill overlooking Los Angeles, and its all laid out in streets, and the flag of each Nation is out in front of their Igloos. The little houses corrall four persons, a kind of two room affair that has two in each room, with a little porch out in front. They are not permanent, but they figure they will last till the medals are all distributed, and everybody that dident get one will be on his way home sore.

Nurmi Is Greta Garbo

But I tell you the Committee that has handled this thing has done a fine job. They have made it just about as pleasant and convenient as it would be possible to do with a couple of thousand folks. They spoke about 19 hundred languages. There was a lot of em there already when I visited the place.

Finland come in that day. Nurmi is kinder the Greta Garbo of the whole affair. They don't know now if they are going to let him compete or not. It seems over in Finland one time when he went to an Athaletic meet, he accepted too much expense money. They only allow em what they can live on, and they live on dried fish over there, so Nurmi took two more fish than he could have actually subsided on, and they call him now a professional. I would call him a "Glutton" on fish, but the Athletic Association still call it professional. Well if they don't let him run it will be like having a Democratic Convention and not have Al Smith.

These Finns, there is no Fords in Finland. Well there is Hellingsford, but no Model T Fords. And what we do in a Ford why a Finn can do on his feet. Instead of five or six folks going out on Sunday in a Ford, why five or six Finns just hit out in a high lope, and only stop at these fish filling stations, refule and run on.

Way To Get In

The trouble with America is they are not "Running" minded, we are kinder "Riding" minded. Well these Finns are the stars of the show here. Then the Japs have the biggest bunch outside of our gang. I just kinder figure those little rascals will carry off the main end of the loot. They are here on horseback, on foot, in canoes, and every way. They will just try anything that anybody else will do. There is about 130 of em, all those that the emigration laws kept out got in as runners, and jumpers.

India has a gang here all dressed like Gandi. The man running the "Round Up" of medal hunters, says you learn a lot about what the League of Nations is up against when you try to please all them. That is in laying out the cottages or who will be next to who. For instance they found they couldent put France and Italy on the same him out on the desert to practice. He will about knock down Mount McKinley.

They have one big assembly room or hotel lobby affair where they all gather, and meet friends. They don't allow any women visitors in the inside of the village, you can go to this reception room and that is as far as they can go. There is some women athletes but they are going to keep them over in some cages some place.

The events are held in about a dozen different places so no one knows where to go or what they really want to see. But its all done on schedule, so it is possible to see it. There is 48 Nations here, some with only one or two athletes, some with a hundred or more. It looks like it will be a great show, you don't want to miss it. Its an awful lot of running and a lot of jumping for nothing, but as long as they enjoy it why I guess its all right. They give these boys all this for $2.00 a day, so thats cheaper than staying at home. So they just as well be here arguing with the judges as not.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Tells Lillian, Harry and Dicky All She Saw and Heard When Trailing Sam Brixton Into the Mountains.

DONALD'S whispered query held so much bewildered suffering that I wished suddenly I were 60 and a grandmother. If I had been, I could have put my arms around him and comforted him, as I would a hurt child; but all I could do was to put an encouraging hand upon his shoulder.

"I wish I had any idea what your stepfather's actions mean," I told him, "but I haven't. We're not even sure that the man who struck him down was one of the kidnapers. But one thing is certain. We are as powerless to aid him now as we were when the man felled him. We must wait for a decision until our men get back, but I am sure they will also say that we must not jeopardize the plan to rescue the girls by any effort in your stepfather's behalf."

"I know," Ronald said miserably. "I feel that way, too. But what I am to tell my mother, I do not know."

"Better to Lie a Little"

A remembrance of a delightful moment in "The Darling of the Gods" flashed across my memory.

"Long ago, Ronald," I said slowly, "I heard a clever actress, playing the role of a high-born Japanese girl, close a scene and bring down the house with these words: 'It is better to—lie a little—than to be—unhappy—much.' I do not commend the sentiment, but in the present case I do not see anything else you can do. Say that your stepfather had evolved a theory of the kidnapping that made him leave the hotel suddenly. Intimate, but do not say outright, that you think he went to New York. Tell her he did not wish her to worry, and therefore did not waken her, but that you are quite sure he will be back tomorrow afternoon, if not sooner. She leans much on you, Ronald. I think you will able to quiet her."

"I hope so," Ronald said, but his tone was dubious, and then as we went into the hotel where the said. "They wanted me to ask you to come upstairs the minute you got here. Ronald and I can turn back the bicycle and fix up something to quiet the hotel clerk's curiosity."

"Don't be explicit," I murmured, "but he thinks I'm a federal operative on the track of bootleggers."

"I'll be careful," he said, and I went on upstairs as Noel gave Ronald a soothing "No" to his anxious query if his mother had wakened.

Dicky's Anxiety

I found Lillian, Harry and Dicky in our sitting room, with Mary curled up on the couch, apparently asleep. But she jumped to her feet as I came into the room and, rushing to me impetuously, hugged me tight.

"Oh, I'm so glad!" she said incoherently. Then Dicky almost pushed her aside as he put gripping hands on my shoulders, his eyes blazing down into mine.

"How dare you risk your life like this?" he demanded.

"I didn't risk anything," I answered stoutly, then flushed as I remembered the blow that had felled Samuel Brixton, and the volley of threats that had come out of the darkness.

"That's not quite true," I admitted, "but, Dicky, I'm back, unharmed, and I have most important news. You're wasting time. Please let me tell you what happened."

"All right; shoot!" he said grudgingly, and, beginning with Ronald's announcement of his stepfather's departure from the hotel, I told the story of our trailing Brixton, dismissing with a sketchy word or two our adventures with the bicycle. I was a bit ashamed of my insistence upon riding that wheel so much of the time, but in the excitement of the chase I had felt that I could entrust to no one my task and I possibly could do.

I stressed, because of the curiosity with which Ronald spoke, the many by-ways the man had taken, and the [illegible]

Kay Pees Squeeze Out 2-1 Win To Retain League Top

MARION, DELAWARE, COLUMBUS, ADA PLAY IN SUNDAY TOURNEY

Fast Clubs Billed in Lincoln Park Softball Meet; Three Games.

The last of the one-day softball tournaments which have been in progress here each week since Memorial day will be staged Sunday at Lincoln park with four teams battling for the cup which goes to each winner of the single day meets. Columbus, Marion, Delaware and Ada will be represented in tomorrow's games, the first of which will start at 1:30 p. m. The one-day tournaments will give way to the Ohio championship tournament, at the North side park on Sunday, July 31. The championship meet will run five successive weeks.

Jenner Lunches, the team which captured the cup in the Memorial day tourney, will make its second bid for honors as the Marion representative Sunday.

Manager Stewart Jones will depend on virtually the same line-up as before to win another cup for the Jenner Lunches. Gene Gunder and Francis Bacon are slated to do the flinging with Wolfe on the receiving end of the tosses. Gibson, Robbins and Niemeyer will be in the outfield. Other members of the team will be Bob and Watt Merchant, Steve Marquis, as well as some other local stars.

The Whittaker Morticians of Columbus, a colored combine, is returning this week for a second attempt to capture a tourney. The Whittaker nine ran into the K. of P. team of Marion two weeks ago and were jolted from the tourney by a 2-0 score. However, the team looked like a first class club and have been granted the right to compete another time.

Ada will be represented by the Zo-Ro-Lo Company Inc. team, a club which is the acknowledged champion of its home bailiwick. The Zo-Ro-Lo combine is made up largely of students of Ohio Northern university and other college students. The team is coming here intent on taking home the tourney cup, being confident of ability to meet any team on even terms.

The Schaffer Welders of Delaware will bring the best that can be produced in the way of softball talent in the neighbor city. Fans here remember the brilliant keystone combination of Turley and McMillen which set diamond fans agog here last season with their play in the Ohio Utular tourney. Turley and McMillen will be in the Welders' lineup Sunday as will a number of other Delaware Stars. This team was originally booked as the All-Stars but will play as the Welders instead. The club looms as one of the best of the four competing this week.

The first game Sunday will match the Delaware Welders and Jenner Lunches of Marion at 1:30 p. m. At 2:15 p. m. the Ada Zo-Ro-Lo team will play the Whittaker Morticians of Columbus. At 3 p. m. the winners of the first two games will play for the trophy. The first two games will be seven innings, the last one nine.

PRESBIE A. C. PROVES TOUGH FOR LEADERS

Kappas Take 10-4 Game from St. Paul; Masons, Erie Traffic Both Take Victories.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

If the members of the Presbyterian A. C. softball team of the Commercial league derive any satisfaction in having held an opponent to a low score they should be in great spirits since their game with the K. of P. team yesterday. The Kay Pees, up to yesterday, had won eight games and lost one. The Presbies had won one and lost nine. However, it took the Kay Pees seven innings to beat the Presbies and then they only managed to do it by a 2-1 score, the winning run being scored as the result of an error. The victory, however its closeness, keeps the fraternal team at the head of the league standings by half a game, the Kappas holding down second.

The second place Kappas took numerous St. Paul Episcopal errors, put them together with some good hard hits and rang up a 10-4 decision over the Center street church club. Don Shoemaker pitched and batted the Erie Traffic club to a 3-1 victory over the Prospect Firemen and the Masons squeezed out a 3-2 victory over the Serv-U-Wel Grocers.

A Close Battle

Joe Castner did the pitching for the Presbyterians against the Kay Pee team. The youthful right hander set the league leaders down with five hits. His mates got three off Schwaderer but none of them counted in the scoring of the one run by the losers.

Don Shoemaker apparently feared his cohorts weren't going to get enough runs for him to beat Prospect so he provided the homer that scored two men and cinched a victory over Prospect. Shoemaker banged his four-ply clout with one aboard in the third inning and then almost completely subdued the opposition with some plain and fancy mound work. Shoemaker weakened one inning long enough to allow three hits and one run but tightened then and was never in much danger.

The Masons and Serv-U-Wel put on the prize battle, the winning run scoring in the last of the seventh. The Serv-U-Wel took a two-run lead in the early innings but lost it when Bacon scored two men with a home run. The teams battled from the fourth to the seventh without scoring although both teams were in the hole several times.

Errors Help Kappas

Six tallies in the first inning, part of them of the gift variety started the Kappas off to a 10-4 victory over the St. Paul's Episcopal team. The Kappas added another four runs to their total in the final frame.

American Weight Tossers Below Olympic Standard

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, July 26—In each of the three principal weight tossing events of the Olympic track and field program, the United States has only one outstanding competitor with a chance to win, on the basis of latest performances.

These are Leo Sexton in the shot-put, John Anderson in the discus and Frank Conner in the hammer throw. All three carry the colors of the New York Athletic club.

Sexton's principal rival for American shotputting honors, Herman Brix, failed to qualify. The 235-pound former Georgetown star has consistently approached 53 feet this year and should have a great battle with at least two of the highly-touted foreign entries — Emil Hirschfeld of Germany, present holder of the world record of 52 feet 7½ inches, which Sexton has beaten three times in competition; and Franz Douda, the Czecho-Slovakian entry who has also bounced the 16-pound iron ball to record distances.

If there is such a thing as discus destiny, it points to an Olympic triumph for giant John Anderson, former Cornellian who was just a good runner-up until this spring. Anderson suddenly got that "something extra" into his throws and hasn't been beaten this year, successively getting off throws of 161 feet, 163 and 165.

They are about ready to concede the hammer throw title to Pat O'Callaghan, Ireland's noted all-around athlete. O'Callaghan has averaged nearly 10 feet better than the throw of 170 feet with which Conner won the American trials.

No Rookie Here

Not so many days ago this column carried the names of several softball recruits who appear to be the outstanding youngsters in the game here this season. Among them was mentioned Carol Caris, an infielder. Since the story has been published, Walter Hane, baseball manager and enthusiast, has taken the trouble to write and advise me that while Caris may be a novice at recreation ball he is no rookie when it comes to playing sandlot baseball. The following is the letter received from Hane:

Dear Bob:

I note that you have added Carol Caris to your list of notable rookies in the city recreational ball leagues. Caris may be a rookie at that game but is a veteran of junior baseball and is also notable in that sport as he holds a record that probably will stand for some time before it is beaten by some new player in the Marion county American Legion junior baseball league. Playing with the Kiwanis team in 1929 he clinched the second base position during the middle of the season by accepting 17 chances without error. However, he played the first four innings at first base having eight putouts and one assist there; the remaining eight chances being at second base during the last five innings.

Caris was utility infielder at the time, the same position he had held during the 1928 season. He finished the 1929 season at second base and played regularly in that position during 1930 when his team's name was changed to Marion Nationals. He became ineligible for junior baseball upon reaching the age of 17 in 1931.

Yours very truly,
Walter E. Hane.

I have an idea that if the facts were known there are some other records held by sandlot players equally as interesting. Hane and others are now busy compiling a history of baseball as played by teams under the sponsorship of the American Legion in previous years. When this is completed it may yield several interesting facts.

Now Whose Fault?

When John McGraw, the Little Napoleon of baseball, suddenly took leave from the management of the New York Giants of the National league on June 6 it was suggested by many that all was not well in the camp of the Giants—that players refused to work for McGraw under his dictatorial methods any longer.

The club was almost at the bottom of the standings then. When Bill Terry was placed at the helm the bleacher managers reckoned the Giants would do an about-face and show the league how baseball should be played. Have they? They have not. They're no nearer a pennant now than then. And show little signs of getting any closer. Maybe "Jawn" wasn't altogether to blame after all for the team's complete flop.

SAINTS ARE DOWNED BY MINNEAPOLIS 7-2

Millers Need Only To Continue Present Pace To Capture Flag.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 26—Donie Bush and his Minneapolis Millers will not have to do any better than maintain their pace since July Fourth to take down the American Association championship.

The Millers faced July Fourth in a virtual tie with Indianapolis and Columbus for first place, and started their parade to undisputed leadership. Winding up with yesterday when the Saints were given a 7 to 2 beating, Minneapolis has built up a record of 17 victories out of 22 engagements—a percentage of .773.

Indianapolis has just barely managed to do better than break even since Independence day, having won 11 out of 21, for a percentage of .524.

The Millers found Slim Harris a tough pitcher for five innings yesterday, but landed on the tall Saint for five runs in the sixth inning to clinch the decision. Harris gave only thre hits during the first five frames, but foled up in a hurry when the Miller bats found the range.

Milwaukee trounced Kansas City 8 to 6 although Pitchers Stiley, Hillin, Kessenich and Polli were required to do it.

FAST HORSES, FOREMOST PILOTS IN SHORT SHIP RACES HERE NEXT WEEK

STEVE PHILLIPS

The best in horses and the best in drivers will be presented here next week in the four-day Short Ship race meeting at the fairground track. More than 200 horses are expected to be quartered at the stables of the North side oval before the post call sounds for the opening event on Tuesday night. All the racing will be done at night under the highly satisfactory light system installed last year.

Doc McMillen of London, one of the country's foremost pilots, will have the largest stable on hand, his 20 horses having already arrived and taken up training. Sep Palin of Indianapolis is also bringing a large stable here, among which is Winnipeg, world's champion pacer. Winnipeg will race on Thursday in the feature event of the program, the free-for-all pace.

Bonnie Axeworthy, a Grand Circuit winner at Toledo last week, is one of McMillen's charges. Bonnie Axeworthy steps the mile in 2:03¼.

Steve Phillips, popular and capable starter of Xenia will be the starting judge of the meet.

Wert Mallow of Cleveland is bringing the stable of the well known sportsman, Austin Estabrook. The Estabrook stables have annually carried off a large share of honors in the Marion races and will make another gallant bid for laurels next week.

Foxx Tops Both Leagues with .368 Batting Average

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 26—The great inter-league slugging duel seems to have settled down to the basis on which Philadelphia's aces, Jimmie Foxx of the Athletics and Chuck Klein of the Phillies intend to fight it out all summer.

Foxx got some aid from a teammate, Al Simmons, in improving the American league's position this week while Paul Waner of Pittsburgh, leading batter of the National league, did his best to help Klein along.

Simmons' work in piling up 106 runs to lead both leagues in scoring gave the junior circuit a slight edge in the records, for Foxx's batting average of .368, through yesterday's games, was the best in either league. Jimmie continued to top the majors with 39 home runs and 120 runs batted in. Klein gave the National league the lead with 140 hits and his 14 triples tied the mark of Buddy Myer, American league leader. Paul Waner continued to lead them all with 39 doubles.

Behind Foxx, the contestants lined up as follows: Walker, Tigers, .339; Manush, Senators, .338; Burns, Browns, .337; Jolley, Red Sox, .334; Averill, Indians, .333; Cramer, Athletics, .331; Simmons, Athletics, .330; Gehrig, Yankees, .325; Dickey, Yankees, .323.

The rest of the National league's "first ten" was Hurst, Phillies, .355; Klein, .349; O'Doul, Brooklyn, .346; Traynor, Pirates, .344; Lombardi, Reds, .340; Ott, Giants, .335; Stephenson, Cubs, .333; V. Davis, Phillies, .330; and L. Waner, Pirates, .329.

Vernon Gomez, of the New York Yankees continued to lead both leagues in pitching with 16 victories and four defeats. Steve Swetonic of Pittsburgh led in the National league race with eleven victories and two defeats.

Tri-County Schedule.

Four games are slated Sunday in the Tri-county baseball league. Haughn's Barbers of Marion will entertain Radnor at the silk mill field in the only Marion game. Other contests will see Marseilles at Morral; Owens Billiards of Marion at Essex and Agosta at Thompson A. C.

Crawford Boosts Lead in Association Batting Race

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 26—Pat Crawford of Columbus, who had a lead of only three points over his nearest rival when he assumed the batting leadership of the American Association a week ago, increased his margin to 12 points this week.

Crawford's mark of 99 games, including those of Thursday, was .382, while Ted Gullic of Milwaukee, who traded places with Evar Swanson, another Red Bird slugger, had .370. Swanson was third with .369.

The individual leadership remained in the same hands, with the exception of the tie between Swanson and Odell Hale of Toledo in triples. Hale got three to assume the lead with 14. Joe Hauser, the Minneapolis buster, got six homers to increase his total to 34, and Bill Knickerbocker of Toledo got three more doubles for a 40 total.

Crawford led in total bases with 245, and in hits with 156. Joe Mowry of Minneapolis retained the lead in scoring with 105 runs, and Swanson batted in eight runs to keep the lead with 95. Herman Layne of Louisville stole two more bases and led with 35, four more than Swanson. Following Crawford, Gullic and Swanson were the following regulars: Cullop, Columbus, .362; Powers, Toledo, .359; Pick, Kansas City, .349; Mowry, Minneapolis, .347; Rosenberg, Indianapolis, .345; Ruble, Minneapolis, .343; and Hale, Toledo, .341.

Bill Lee of Columbus topped the pitching regulars with 13 triumphs and three defeats. Joe Heving had 11 victories and three defeats, while Hi Vandenberg of Minneapolis had won nine and lost two.

Columbus' team batting average fell off two points to .318, but the Red Birds were still far out in front, Indianapolis ranking second with .303. St. Paul held the lead in team fielding with .976, and clipped off nine more double plays for a total of 132 in 97 games.

LEGION PLAYERS TO ORGANIZE MONDAY

All former members of American Legion junior baseball teams have been invited to attend an organization of such players at a meeting Monday, July 25 at 7 p. m. at the parish house of St. Paul's Episcopal church. Walter Hane is sponsoring the club. There are already about 40 members enrolled.

It is planned to organize a basketball team for play next season. The group will hold regular social meetings during the winter.

The organization's immediate objective is to train young ball players so they will understand the game when the Legion junior league is reestablished, possibly next summer.

OAKLAND STARS TO TACKLE MT. GILEAD

The Oakland Stars' baseball team will cross bats with Mt. Gilead at the Shovel athletic field Sunday afternoon at 2:30 p. m. These two teams met two weeks ago and battled through 10 innings before the Marion club finally gained a 4-3 decision. Another tough game is expected this Sunday.

PIRATES BEAT CUBS TO STRETCH MARGIN IN NATIONAL RACE

Bucs Boost Lead Three and One-Half Games; A's Stop Nats.

By The Associated Press

Where there have been league champions—notably the Philadelphia Athletics of last season—who ran up their winning percentage over the weaker clubs while getting no better than an even break against their leading adversaries, there can be no such charge against the Pittsburgh Pirates if they capture the current National league race.

The Pirates, in fact, have done their best work since they started their sensational climb a month ago against the team generally regarded as their strongest rival, the Chicago Cubs.

In their last nine engagements the Pirates have turned in seven victories, more than sufficient to account for their three and one-half game leader over the field today.

George Gibson's men demonstrated their ability to beat the Cubs for the fourth straight time yesterday with a 3 to 1 victory at Pittsburgh.

The National league's only other contribution to a dull day along the baseball front presented the Phillies in a 9 to 5 victory over Brooklyn.

Mickey Cochrane's robust hitting featured the Athletics' 8 to 4 win over Washington in the American league's lone attraction. The slugging catcher tagged all the bases with a home run, a triple, a double and a single, driving in three runs.

EQUIPOISE FAVORED IN ARLINGTON RACE

However, Whitney Four-Year-Old Faces Brilliant Field at Chicago.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 26—If some of the country's other handicap stars every hoped to defeat Equipoise, today appeared to be the day to do it.

The powerful four-year-old from the stables of C. V. Whitney was called upon for the hardest job of his career in the $20,000 added Arlington handicap, in which he was handed the enormous weight package of 134 pounds.

In spite of the weight and the distance of a mile and a quarter, Equipoise was figured to go to the post favorite at about 3 to 5. Gusto, the leader of the three-year-old division, was in with 116 pounds, but Silvio Coucci, who piloted him to triumph and riches in the American derby and Arlington classic, was not with him. Coucci was down to ride Stephenfetchit.

While Clover II, a French six-year-old, was in the field with 117 pounds, Risque, Mrs. John D. Hertz' four-year-old filly; Pittsburgher, Plucky Play, Dr. Freeland and Tred Avon, comprised the rest of the prospective field.

STOCK SHARES RETAIN GAINS

Market Absorbs Profit Taking, Recovering Early Declines Later.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 23—The stock market managed to absorb week-end profit taking and at the same time maintain most of its gains of the week in today's short session.

The list eased off somewhat in the first hour, when a number of the leaders lost from fractions to a point, but this was largely regained later. A professional demonstration in the alcohol stocks carried those issues higher in the late trading, and the general list closed with a steady tone. The turnover was about 300,000 shares.

The outstanding item of business news was the report of total freight car loadings for the week ended July 16, showing a gain of 87,144 cars. This was approximately 15,000 cars larger than the decline of the preceding week, when the movement was curtailed by the Independence day holiday. Rails, however, were not disposed to extend their gain of the previous session, since the freight movement must expand much more before any large number of the carriers will be restored to a profitable basis.

Losses of about a point in such issues as U. S. Steel preferred, American Telephone, Westinghouse, Johns Manville and Union Pacific were virtually cancelled. U. S. Steel common and American Can regained ½ point losses. Coca Cola, however, was a soft spot, closing lower about 1.

Rails and oils held about steady. In the alcohol group, National Distillers, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and American Commercial alcohol were each bid up about a point, which appeared to be a professional maneuver, in view of the lack of fresh news dealing with the position of these companies.

General Motors dipped ⅛ of a point, in response to the overnight news of its second quarter earnings of only 7 cents a share, but then recovered to close virtually unchanged.

Commodities eased a little in spots, but bonds held up well. Cotton lost about 45 cents a bale.

Corn closed unsettled, at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅝ higher, wheat ⅛ off to ⅛ up, oats unchanged to ⅛ lower and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to a rise of 15 cents.

Theater News and Reviews

COURTROOM PICTURE WITH EDMUND LOWE STARTS HERE SUNDAY

Edmund Lowe, Evelyn Brent and Constance Cummings headline the cast of characters in "Attorney for the Defense" which will open a three-day showing Sunday at the Ohio theater.

Edmund Lowe

Two outstanding qualities contribute to the entertainment value of the film which has fine dramatic action and subtlety. The punch of the story's drama bits out in the courtroom scene when Lowe is hysterically denounced by an innocent man condemned to the chair. From that point it builds through the scenes where Lowe and Donald Dillaway argue over Evelyn Brent, through the scene in her apartment after the murder, to the final trial scene where Lowe defends himself.

Bill Burton, played by Edmund Lowe, gives realism to his portrayal of the over-ambitious district attorney who ruthlessly sends men to their death and as a great defense lawyer. However, when he sends an innocent man to the chair, he discovers he has a conscience and it is this conscience that affects his transformation.

KEN MAYNARD PICTURE AT STATE

Plenty of action, a plot and a clever counter-plot furnish entertainment and thrills in "Arizona Terror," one of two pictures in the double header scheduled for Sunday and Monday at the State theater. "The Woman Between" starring Lily Damita completes the two-day bill.

Ken Maynard is the star of the western drama. Maynard follows the murderers of his partner into California where he is ambushed, shot from his horse and left for dead. He is found by a girl who takes him to her home and the same evening her father is murdered under circumstances that point to the stranger as the killer.

A leading part in the picture is played by one of the most popular actors to ever face a camera, Ken Maynard's horse, Tarzan. Tarzan not only brings help to his master as he lies wounded but also bucks an unwelcome rider to the ground. When Ken whistles, Tarzan comes running.

OFFICERS CHARGED WITH MURDER

Here are the four members of the Nassau county, N. Y., police force who have been held on a second degree murder charge following the investigation into the "third degree" death of Hyman Stark, hold-up suspect, who died during interrogation. The men, left to right, are: Detectives Charles Zander and Leslie Pearsall, Lieutenant Jesse Mayferth and Detective Charles Wesser. They are held in $10,000 bail each for the grand jury. Seven other officers are charged with assault.

1,013 Properties Change Hands Here During Year

One thousand thirteen deeds involving 22,424 acres of land and 132 city, town and village lots were filed with Charles A. Markert, county recorder, during the year ending June 30, it is shown in a report to the secretary of state just completed.

A majority of deeds listed the consideration for the property transferred as "$1 and other valuable consideration," making it impossible to determine the amount of consideration involved. Those listing the sale price disclose that 6,376 acres of farm land sold for a total of $286,565.78. During the year ending June 30, 1931, 3,804 acres were sold for a total of $190,340.21. Officials point out, however, that these figures do not represent the true value of the land as the majority of the transactions are forced sales.

More land has been leased during the last 12 months than during the immediately preceding period, but the rentals have dropped. During the last 12 months leases involving 171 acres of land and 17 city and village tracts and consideration of $101,412 were recorded. During the same period a year ago, leases involving 123 acres and 25 lots and consideration of $127,013.43 were filed, according to the report.

The volume, in dollars, of mortgages filed and cancelled during the last 12 months shows an increase over the preceding year. Four hundred twenty mortgages involving 23,180 acres and 337 city and village lots and totalling $3,015,345.21 were filed during the year as compared with 553 mortgages involving 12,640 acres and 411 lots and totalling $707,346.08 recorded during the preceding 12 months. A single transaction which passed the million-dollar mark boosted the last year's total.

A summary of cancellations show that during the last year 636 mortgages involving 11,719 acres and 498 city and village lots, aggregating $2,913,734.92 were cancelled. During the preceding year mortgages cancelled numbered 646, involved 7,402 acres and 847 lots and totalled $1,086,808.26.

4 Upper Sandusky Men Living on Same Street Past 90; Ages Total 373 Years

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, July 23—This city lays claim to the distinction of having four people living on the same street all above the age of four score and 10 years.

More interesting still, these four men all live on the same side of the street and within two city blocks of each other. They are Michael Boes, 96; Jacob J. Sammet, 95; James Kenan, 91, and Martin V. Gibson, 91, all residing on West Johnson street.

Their aggregate ages total 373 years, which span of time goes to the year 1559, which was six years before the founding of St. Augustine, Fla., the oldest city in the United States.

Mr. Boes, the senior member of this unusual group, was born in Luxemburg, Nov. 27, 1836, which at that time was a part of the dissolved Germanic confederation. Andrew Jackson was at that time the president of the United States and Ohio had been in the Union for only 33 years. He came to America with his parents in 1866 and settled in Seneca county. A few years later he moved to this county. Mr. Boes moved to this city with his family about 27 years ago from Kirby.

Jacob J. Sammet was born near Heilbronn, Wuertemberg, Germany, Oct. 22, 1837, and came to this county in 1880, settling in Wyandot county. While in his native country he served six years in military training in the Eighth regiment of Infantry. During a mobilization for a threatened war with Italy, Mr. Sammet saw Emperor William I, grandfather of the former Kaiser William II. Mr. Sammet resides with his son, Fred Sammet, with whom he has lived for the past 23 years.

James Kenan is one of the surviving pioneers of this county. He was born in an old tavern in Tymochtee Dec. 15, 1841, and is the only member of this group to serve in the Civil war. He passed his boyhood in Tymochtee, which at that time boasted of seven business places. One of these was the post-office and Mr. Kenan's father was named postmaster in 1845. Mr. Kenan enlisted in Company D, 123d, O. V. I. in the Civil war and in the battle of New Market in 1864 was seriously wounded. For the past several years he has resided with his niece, Miss Cora Kenan.

Martin V. Gibson was born July 6, 1841, a mile east of Wharton, in what was then a part of Hancock county. He came to this city in 1871. For eight years he operated a restaurant and in 1884 was named postmaster by President Grover Cleveland, serving one term.

For three years he was deputy sheriff under Sheriff William Kuenzli. He was again appointed postmaster by President Cleveland in 1892, which position he held during the second Cleveland administration. In the early days the post-office had a postmaster, deputy and one clerk. After leaving the postal service Mr. Gibson was engaged in the insurance business for more than 30 years.

Martel Youth Wins Honor Judging Poultry Contest

Muryl Shumaker, a student of the vocational agriculture department of Martel High school won first prize in the poultry judging contest at the annual vocational agriculture judging contest at Ohio State university on June 3 and 4. He will receive as first prize, an Ohio Bankers Association ribbon and has earned for his high school an Ohio accredited hatcheries banner. Announcement of Shumaker's achievement was made today through H. C. Gibboney, Martel vocational instructor.

Shumaker won first prize over several hundred boys from all parts of Ohio. He has acquired considerable reputation in poultry raising. As an award for raising 91 per cent of his first brood in 1931, he was given a brooder stove. With this flock of pullets he was successful in obtaining an average of 44.7 per cent egg production from October until March last winter and was able to show a return of 11 cents a dozen above feed costs in a season of unusually low egg prices.

Shumaker, according to his instructor, shows considerable ingenuity in making his own poultry equipment, having made his own battery brooder in which he raised his chicks this spring.

In addition to his work in raising poultry, Shumaker is also a member of the Martel school band and orchestra and of the Marion County Future Farmers of America band. He will be a senior next year and was recently elected president of the Martel chapter of the Future Farmers of America.
